2008 Lenné Estate Pinot Noir	$45.00	$40.50	$36.00
-------------------------------------	----------------	----------------	----------------

I think this wine will be ethereal with some bottle age and ceratinly among the best wines we have ever produced at Lenné. The wine is composed of the best barrels from the vintage and primarily from the 115 and Pommard clones. It has loads of fine grained tannins which are protecting the wine but slowing it's evolution. This wine is starting to soften on the palate and reveal the typical mocha aromatic so prevalent in our Pinot Noirs. More bottle time will enhance that and I recommend at least another year before you approach this wine.

2009 Lenné Estate "Jill's 115" Pinot Noir	$55.00	$49.50	$44.00

The 2009 Jill's 115 Pinot Noir is the most opulent of our clonal designate wines from 2009. The wine has cherry and currant aromas with a some mocha in the background. Opulent, silky and palate coating, it is hard to resist now but will continue to gather complexity with a couple of years in the bottle.

2008 Big Table Farm Syrah(White Hawk Vineyard)	$48.00	$43.20	$37.40

Below are notes from Brian Marcy, winemaker. Note that this is the same vineyard that goes into the Sine Qua Non wine at $250 plus a bottle.

"2008 was a warmer year with lower yields in California, creating an opulent wine that is drinking well now! Clare and I opened a bottle the other night to make notes and before we knew it the wine was gone and we hadn't even eaten yet (or made any notes) - slightly dangerous. All natural ferments with 50% whole cluster, 40% New French oak and after an elevage of 14 months, it was ready to bottle. The label has returned to a calamitous set of knives, forks and spoons. I hope you find this wine as delightful as we do. 168 cases produced, 48 dollars."

Note: The 2009 wines are opulent, gorgeous wines but if you have them in your cellar past 5 years from now, you will have made a mistake. If you're not receiving emails from us please let me know by emailing me at steve@lennestate.com
